OBJECTIVE

Currently, I am a 3rd-year B.Sc. CSE student at American International University-Bangladesh. I have successfully engaged in programming, machine learning, and software engineering through impactful academic projects and an Accepted conference paper. As a skilled software developer or computational researcher, I am prepared to leverage my strong technical foundation to innovate and address real-world challenges.

PROJECTS

Online Food Hub Portal – C# Windows Forms Application

- Built a C# desktop User-friendly application enabling online food ordering with secure payments, menu management, and user authentication.
- Key features include sign-up/login, menu updates, and order processing.

Tools: C#, .NET Framework, Microsoft SQL Server

Plant Aid - Software Engineering Course Project

- Developed "Plant Aid," a software solution using Agile with Scrum to diagnose plant health, detect diseases, and provide care instructions for farmers and researchers.
- Worked on project proposal, UI design, testing, and functional requirements, implementing features like plant scanning, weather data integration, and community forums.

Tools: Agile Methodology

Stress Detection and Relief Recommendations

- Trained machine learning models to predict stress levels using wearable-derived physiological, behavioral, and demographic data from 374 participants, achieving up to 96% accuracy with a stacked ensemble (Random Forest, XG Boost, Logistic Regression, SVM).
- Built a meta-model delivering personalized stress relief recommendations (e.g., exercise, meditation) and a suicide action plan for high-risk cases.

Tools: Python, Scikit-learn, XGBoost, Pandas, NumPy
